TRIBAL NEWSLETTER

VOLUME 87 NO 6

FROM THE CHIEF

Oklahoma is getting warm already, in fact, it's down right hot here right now, with no end in sight. I can't imagine how hot it will get in July and August.

Speaking of hot and July, don't forget the General Council meeting which will be held on July the 13th and start at 7:30 p.m. The only position open for voting and discussion will be the 3rd Councilman position. So you might start thinking about who you want in the position.

The tribal staff has been busy trying to locate new sources of funding and have turned up some exciting possibilities. One of the most exciting, is in the area of writing, painting and poetry. Funding has been made available next year for writing workshops and painting workshops. We're going to try for it. It would be nice to have a tribal member become an author or well-known painter.

Well that's about it. So try to keep cool and I'll see you in July.

ENTS

A grant has been applied for in the. This grant is for $63,000 to fight drug and alcohol abuse.

ARK

The park's looking good, but still needs some work, fortunately the Summer Youth chain gang have put their backs, feet and blisters into cleaning it up. They're doing a fine job.

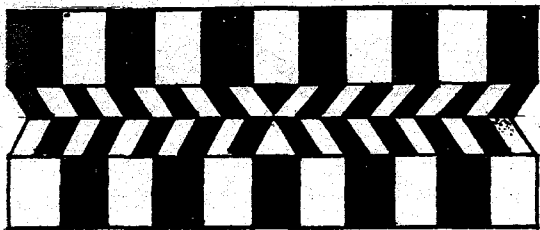

Two reunions have been held so far: The Bluejacket family and the Bluejacket/Peacock Reunion.

During the week if you just want a place to hide for awhile and let the kids wade come on down, it's normally empty. The weekends, of course, are different.

Remember to call or write for reservations on the reservation for the park. Especially if a large group of people is expected.

PHOTOGRAPHS

The tribal office is currently taking pictures and having copies made of older photographs of the tribal members who have served the tribe in the past. So if you know of any photographs we could copy send them in. They'll be returned.

Help, Help, Help

Yes, we're begging. But first the office staff would like to thank Mrs. Carolyn Fogg's gift of the old reservation map.

Speaking of maps and other old things. Help! The tribe is slowly gathering items from days gone by: arrowheads, newspaper clippings, etc. If you have anything you would like to donate, send it in, we give credit to the donator.

LIBRARY BOOKS

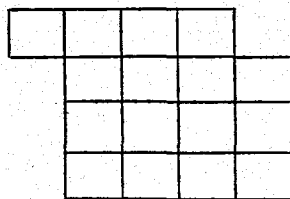

Currently the tribe has approximately 25 books on the shelf and another 125 on order. The books are mainly on American Indians. Most contain sections or at least mention of the Eastern Shawnee's. So if you want to read up on the Good Shawnee's come in and check out a book. Also, if you have any books on Indians laying around or any other books you don't need. We could use them.

PUZZLE

Yes, readers, a puzzle. It's simple. Just rearrange the 7 words so they all fit into the boxes.

Example: CAT
A O
POP

FISH-FISH-FISH

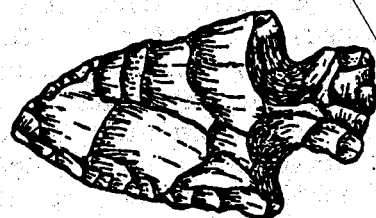

It's that time of year FISHING TIME and you need bait for the big ones.

Dough Balls

1-cup of flour
 1-tsp. powder garlic or 1-tbsp. of cheese spread

Place the flour in shallow bowl and add water to the flour and garlic slowly and work into a very stiff dough so stiff it's hard to work. Roll into sticks about as thick and long as your finger.

Bring water to boil and drop in the dough. Boil until it turns translucent, then remove and place on paper towels to dry. Don't let them touch as they will stick together.

SELECTING A DENTIST

There are many factors to consider when looking for a dentist. The kinds of questions given below should help you find out from the dentist's office, in advance, about services of particular importance to you.

"What are the fees for a routine checkup and cleaning?"

"Does the dentist accept Medicare assignment for oral surgery procedures?" Only a few oral surgery procedures are covered by Medicare.

"Does the dentist employ a dental hygienist?" Dental hygienists clean teeth and perform other services, allowing the dentist to devote greater time to more complex procedures.

WHAT TO ASK YOUR DENTIST ABOUT DIAGNOSIS AND TREATMENT

There is a common misconception that dental disease and losing one's teeth are a normal part of aging. You may help prevent dental and other oral diseases with daily attention to oral hygiene, proper nutrition, and regular visits to the dentist.

Your first visit to a new dentist should include a discussion of your medical and dental history, and oral exam (usually including X-rays), and a cleaning and scaling of teeth and gums. Make sure you bring with you the name and address of your previous dentist, who may have X-rays, test results, or advice that will assist you new dentist and may save on costs. The dentist or hygienist should discuss any preventive care measures you can take. The dentist also may recommend corrective treatment.

Whatever treatment your dentist recommends, it is always advisable to ask what alternatives you have and to compare the costs, benefits, and risks of accepting or rejecting treatment. It is especially important to get as much information as possible for non-routine procedures, such as tooth extractions or temporary or fixed bridges.

Listed below are some questions you may wish to ask your dentist regarding tests and treatment.

"Is an X-ray absolutely necessary? Will you provide a lead apron or bib?" X-rays are an indispensable diagnostic tool for dentists. While patients may want to double check on how often X-rays are needed, dentists must determine the need for X-rays based on the patient's individual case. Even though modern X-ray machines are designed to emit a low level of radiation, the dentist may ask you to wear a lead apron.

"If I need dentures, can you recommend the most economical way to obtain them?" Some dentists are able to discount their dentures for low-income or elderly patients. You also may want to inquire about low-cost denture programs sponsored by dental societies, university dental schools, or your state or city government.

-EDITORIAL-

Speaking of words and thoughts. Doesn't anybody have any? Here's this fine piece of paper going to waste. Oh, I could write something but it wouldn't be the same. We want your thoughts, your opinions. Come to think of it, I have a thought!!!

Apathy: Yep apathy, massive apathy has set in frozen tongues, dulled brains, your eyes are closing slowly, into a stupor you fall.

"But I don't have time to write"? Sure, sure I can see it now, everyone running, reading this at stop signs, between bites, sure I bet.

This has been an editorial opinion.

Black Walnut-Flavored Cake

8 slices enriched white bread, finely crumbed
1&1/3 cups-non-fat, dry milk powder
Artificial sweetener to equal 1 1/2 cups sugar
8 eggs
2 tsp.-vanilla extract
1 tbs.-black walnut extract

Combine bread crumbs, milk powder, and artificial sweetener in a bowl; mix well. In mixing bowl, beat eggs, 5 minutes.

Add extracts, and beat 5 minutes longer. Stir egg mixture into crumb mixture; mix well. Pour into 2 (8-inch) round cake pans lined with waxed paper. Bake at 350F (moderate oven), 30 minutes. Remove cakes from pans, and peel away waxed paper. Cool on rack. Frost with Strawberry Fluff Frosting.
